

Dear Parents/Guardians,

Due to the progression of your child in their keyboard lessons at school they now require a music book called 'Get Set! Piano Tutor Book 1'.

Why have we not required this sooner?

Due to Covid-19 last academic year many of the lessons were postponed and our progress was disrupted. We have been looking at piano basics together and preparing with games for progressing in this book, but we are now at a point where we need a book to progress further. I also wanted to make sure they did want to play and learn before I asked parents to invest in a book.

Why do we use a book?

Piano tutor books are interactive workbooks that help students progress. This book is designed for primary school aged children, and I have found it has given the children a great sense of achievement working through the book as they can see their progress and development. Music gives children a skill outside of normal academic studies where they can build additional confidence and self-belief.

Which book is it?

The book is called 'Get Set! Piano Tutor Book 1' and it will last them at least a year, as there is lots of pieces to play and activities to complete.

Please be careful that it is the correct book as there are quite a few in the series that have similar titles. It needs to be the tutor book 1.

Below are a few links to copies of the books I have found, and you should also be able to get it from a local music shop:
