Dear Parents,

I hope that your child has settled back into school and that the return to the normal school routines has helped to provide comfort to them at this difficult time.

We are in regular contact with a range of professionals who are able to provide advice and support to enable us to be responsive to the children's questions and needs. Following a bereavement, it is natural for children to question and/ or to talk about the person who has died. This is normal and is part of the way that children make sense of what has happened.

Please be assured that we are monitoring the children very closely in order to be proactive as and when required.

If you have concerns about your child, please speak to Mrs Gibbon or myself in the first instance.

Kind regards,

Mrs V Chudleigh
Deputy Head Teacher
